I am honoured and humbled to serve as the Vice Principal for NationalHigh Jakarta School. This year marks my twentieth year in education. Throughout my career as an educator and a leader, I have always perceived each student as a wonderfully unique individual. My belief and mission are in student success and that every child can learn. Together with Mr Ang, the Deans and teachers, we aim to create a path for students to become life-long learners, active citizens with meaningful contributions to local and global societies, equipped with exemplary morals.

Term 2 of AY2022-2023 has kicked off to a good start. All signs point to gaining normalcy, albeit slowly. The news that masks can be taken off while doing PE or sports activities brought relief to many of our students and teachers alike. However, students must remember to put on their mask after the end of their exercises or sports activities, and continue to practice good hygiene. Dropping or losing masks during this transition period is expected as students learn to accustom to mask-off and mask-on routine. Thus they are strongly encouraged to bring extra masks to school.

UPCOMING EVENTS

October

- 7 Year 3 Milestone Programme
- 8 Prophet Muhammad's Birthday (Mawlid al-Nabi)
- 14 Year 6 Milestone Programme
- 14 Education & Career Day 2022
- 14 Open House
- 15 SC: Hideaway

This week also sees the return of 'Be Yourself Week' in a physical school setting. It's heartening to observe students and teachers putting in efforts to match their clothes with the theme of each day, and busied themselves with snapshots of class photos. Among the excitement, unfortunately there were some students who could not participate in 'Be Yourself Week' in-person. But it will be a matter of time that group photos on Zoom will soon be a thing in the past.

Beyond expressing themselves creatively through their choice of clothes, to "be yourself" can sometimes be a struggle for some children. To me, "be yourself" is about guiding our actions based on what we believe, stay true to our values. It's about making choices because those are the things we want to do, not because we feel expected to. It's also about understanding and embracing the uniqueness of oneself and others.

CELEBRATING THE COMMUNITY

7-13 OCTOBER 2022

In a world that pushes conventionality, it can be easy for children to feel like who they are is not enough. We can encourage and help children to be themselves by being an active participant in their life and passions. Be engaged in their interests. Avoid comparing one child to another. All children are wonderfully unique; they have different personalities, interests, minds, passions and abilities. While they may still need guidance and support, they also need to grow in their own space. Let them go out there, try new things, make new experiences. They may make mistakes along the way but that is the most important as it is part of growth.

There will be many opportunities for students to participate in school and student-led activities in the coming months. We hope students continue to participate in the events to discover their interests and talents, and along with it, enjoy the learning process.

As we move along the school year, do feel free to approach me to share your input and support to make NationalHigh a better place for educating the children. I am excited about what we can accomplish together for our children and look forward to celebrating our collective success.

English Language Department's Article

All Hands on Deck: Handwriting Skills are Essential, too!

This article is an excerpt from Ms Chie’s piece on Edutopia: Extending Penmanship Lessons Beyond Elementary School. At the time of writing, it is in the top three most popular articles on the educational site.

Penmanship is essential for students to learn, even beyond the lower primary levels. Although it has been “commonly perceived to be the responsibility of lower grade levels” (Bjarenas, 2022), students beyond these levels can also benefit from handwriting instruction.

Why is handwriting important for all levels?

Bjarenas (2022) highlights the following areas it enhances:

- It automates letter and word formations, which allows the writer to write faster and, hence, more and lightens the cognitive load.
- It quickens the development of reading and writing skills.
- It allows for more regular submission of work.
- It helps build memory.

How do we support students as they work on their handwriting fluency? Work on the “pressure points.”

Pressure Points

• Pencil Grip

Students need to know how to hold their pen or pencil correctly. NH teachers are helping students develop their tripod grip.

• Pressure

The correct pressure must be applied to the writing instrument and paper. Often, a pad of paper or a notebook under the writing paper helps.

• Paper Hold

To support the pencil grip and the pressure on the writing instruments, the writer must hold the paper with their non-dominant hand.

• Stroke Formation

Closing the loop for accuracy, students need to be explicitly taught how to form their letters. Students must know which letters begin from the midline, the baseline, or the topline and where to go from there. Explicit instruction is provided by all English teachers from Year 1 to Year 6.

NationalHigh Jakarta School teachers (primary) are supporting our students’ growth in this area. We think students can be supported at home, too. Keep an eye out for the pressure points when your child writes at home and reinforce their skills in this area.
